

ABOUT THE SITE

Je T'Aime, Me Neither is the only website fully dedicated to unique, romantic experiences for young, modern travelers in Paris and on an expanding global scale.

Since its inception in 2012, in conjunction with Lily Heise's then upcoming first book of the same name, the site incites residents and visitors to experience Paris and other global destinations through authentic, offbeat, original and secret activities including hidden bars, hip restaurants, cool hotels and secret things to do. Her growing list of tips and insider suggestions will be expanding into a series of city-specific romantic itineraries.

ABOUT LILY

(April) Lily Heise, is a Canadian freelance writer and travel professional based in Paris since 2000. She's been writing about Paris, romance, travel, events, art and culture for over 8 years and published her first book, a novelized memoir on her romantic misadventures, Je T'Aime, Me Neither, in 2013. Her second book, Je T'Aime... Maybe?, was released in November 2016.

She contributes to a variety of international and local publications including Conde Nast Traveler, Frommer's guidebooks, DK Eyewitness and her work has been featured on the Huffington Post, Business Insider, Lonely Planet, City Secrets and the official French Tourism bureau. Her site and her book have also been mentioned in numerous prestigious and influential publications (see examples of both below).

WORK WITH ME:

Lily can adapt her writing style to diverse audiences, from intellectual to fresh, fun and sexy. She specializes in features on Paris, France, romance and dating. However, she has also traveled and can write on global destinations in Europe (the UK, Italy, Spain, Portugal, the Netherlands, Belgium, Denmark, Germany), Asia (Japan, China, Hong Kong, Indonesia, Thailand, Vietnam, Cambodia, Laos) and South America (Argentina, Brazil, Uruguay) in addition to major cities in Canada and the US.

She works with local and international corporate brands, events and books that could appeal to her audience and only ones she could personally vouch for.
